The Challenge We Address

Every girl deserves to grow up informed, healthy, and fearless.

Yet millions of adolescent girls in India face invisible barriers — at school, at home, and in their own bodies — that quietly erode their confidence and potential.

40%

School absenteeism

Girls miss school during menstruation due to pain, lack of facilities, or fear of staining.

65%

Daily disruption

Menstruation affects daily activities, like missed classes, tests & social withdrawal.

Mental health burden

Rates of anxiety, depression, and low self-esteem among adolescent girls are climbing — yet school health programmes rarely address emotional wellbeing.

Silence = harm The stigma gap

Menstruation, puberty, and reproductive health remain deeply taboo. Girls are taught to conceal and endure — not understand and thrive. Without safe spaces to ask questions, misinformation fills the void and shapes lifelong health decisions.

Our Approach

Four pillars. One transformation.

Infano.Care's programme is built on evidence from global research on adolescent health and school-based interventions — delivered through a model designed specifically for India's school ecosystem.

Menstrual & Reproductive Health

Science-backed modules that demystify puberty, menstrual hygiene, reproductive anatomy, and body autonomy — normalising what has long been silenced.

Mental Wellness & Resilience

Emotional intelligence tools, stress-coping techniques, and confidence-building exercises that equip girls to navigate adolescence with clarity.

Life Skills & Leadership

Communication, decision-making, boundary-setting, and peer leadership skills that prepare girls for life well beyond the classroom.

Personal Safety & Digital Literacy

Personal safety awareness, online safety skills, and understanding of rights — so every girl knows how to protect herself in every space.

The Infano.Care Model

A hybrid experience built for real school life

We combine the intimacy of in-person facilitation with the consistency and privacy of a digital platform — creating an experience that works within your school's existing schedule.

In-School Sessions
